November 2009 Newsletter

At the start of this month we say goodbye to Jean Kent. It feels like too soon but everyone at KSP wishes you the best of luck in your endeavours. We have the honour of welcoming our new Young Writer in Residence, Jessica Stalley, into our midst. She's a local speculative fiction author with a bright future ahead of her. She'll be staying with us for two weeks, working on her supernatural novels. Glad to have you with us, Jessica, and we hope you have an enjoyable and productive stay.

Sunday December 6th is Katharine's Birthday - 11.00am Volunteer thanks and lunch, 1.30pm Poetry Awards, 3.00pm Short Fiction Awards..

We've had our big Write-a-Book-in-a-Day Competition Award Ceremony at The Boulevard Centre in Floreat. Congratulations to all the winning and commended teams! The amount of entries and funds raised this year was a record for WABIAD so a big congratulations is in order for every school who participated. Well done!

This issue is jam packed with competitions, awards and opportunities for writing- so many we had trouble fitting them all in!

We love to celebrate our members. Let us know if you've received an accolade or have accomplished something wonderful in your personal writing. We'd also love small articles or photos of KSP events.

Helen Gildfind: Thankyou

Apparently I brought the rain with me to Perth but, coming from a very dry Melbourne, this weather provided me the 'cosy' atmosphere I needed to settle in to my beautiful cabin in Katherine's garden.

After Katrin patiently explained and re-explained timetables to me (for I seemed to have left that part of my brain at home!), I soon established a routine of writing, walking, reading, and attending all of the writers' groups that congregate here. Every group was very welcoming and encouraging, and I was struck repeatedly by the range of engaging people and projects that KSP seems to attract. It was great fun watching Paula keep a handle on her very cheeky Young Writers on Tuesdays, and the range of quality of their work was impressive. The Write Free and Thursday Night group endured readings of my own work, Paper People, and listening to their writing, and hearing reactions to my own, has given me much needed perspective on my project. I was lucky enough to have Faye drive me through the countryside to meet the Northam Group. Again, the diversity of the people and projects in this group was fascinating. The very professional writers in the Poetry Group humbled me with their talent and have inspired me to work harder: I must become a better poet! Past Tense, Scriptwriters, Sci Fi and Non Fiction have each given me insight into areas of writing that I have very little experience of. Attending the Poetry Club in the city offered me insight into the 'poetry scene' here in Perth, and also got me out of weeding for Chris's busy-bee in Katherine's garden (though he had me laying down the water-system before I could escape!)

Having met so many interesting and friendly people, I was not a complete nervous wreck at the literary dinner. Wobbling behind the podium, I managed to inflict some of my work onto a very sympathetic crowd. Thank you for coming! It was a beautiful night, and I felt honoured by the effort that the committee went to in order to make it so. My workshop, 'Panning for Gold,' went well despite no handouts (my fault!) and dying whiteboard markers (KSP's fault!). Many words were editing skills with highly respected industry practitioners. Applications close 11 January 2010. Contact Robyn Sheahan-Bright on (07) 49729760 email rsheahan@tpg.com.au. ### APA/Australia Council Residential Editorial Program

The Australian Publishers Association and the Literature Board of the Australia Council are running the Residential Editorial Program (REP) at Varuna, the Writers' House in Katoomba, NSW. 3-8 May 2010. This prestigious biennial program offers mid-career editors a unique opportunity to take part in an intensive five-day program to develop literary written and I am surprised people didn't revolt at being worked so hard! Hopefully, as well as sore wrists, some stories will emerge from this class.

KSP is a very inclusive, warm and encouraging place for the wide range of people who come here. Being around a range of people, with a range of life and writing experiences, has been inspiring and has reminded me that 'writers' are, first and foremost, 'people who write'! It has been liberating to be reminded that writing for the joy, fascination and discipline of it are the first and last reasons to write at all. Being here has also emphasised to me what a strange beast writing is: something that is solitary in the making and (typically) in the reading, but also something that always demands community in order to both exist and to flourish.

Thank you to everyone who has made my stay so comfortable and productive! (By Helen Gildfind)

What's been happening @KSP

New addition to the KSP library from Helen Gildfind

Helen Gildfind has kindly donated The Penguin Anthology of Australian Poetry - edited by John Kinsella to the KSP library. Thank you so much, Helen. Books can be borrowed from the library by KSP members.

School Holiday Write-a-Rama with Dr Melissa O'Shea

From the 6th to the 8th, young budding writers enjoyed the three day School Holiday Write-a-Rama with Dr Melissa O'Shea.

During the Write-a-Rama the kids learned how write humour and suspense with children's novelist David Caddy and were treated to an excursion to Caversham Wildlife Park and the Margaret River Chocolate Company in the Swan Valley. On their last day, screenwriter Paul Wayne showed them how popular TV shows create humour and suspense, then let them loose to create possible future TV hits.

The Chocolate Company was, not surprisingly, a big hit with the kids. Learning to write comedy also got rave reviews, many of the kids saying it was their favourite part. The kids showed a bright enthusiasm and skill for writing and had a great time making new friends, helped and encourage along the way by Dr. Melissa O'Shea. One happy participant giving the experience a "700/10". Their work will be published in a Write-A-Rama anthology to enjoy for years to come.

Literary Dinner with Established Writer-In-Residence Jean Kent

Twelve KSP writers and guests attended the literary dinner given for Jean Kent, on Tuesday evening the 20th. This was pure indulgence, in food, wine and most certainly in the opportunity to immerse ourselves in the poetry of esteemed guest poet, Jean Kent.

In between courses of the delightful meal, Jean read poems from her published collections, Verandahs and The Satin Bower Bird. The several poets in attendance found themselves in awe of her word usage, precise imagery and the extent to which she stretches the imagination.

Workshop 'Poetry for Luminous Tortoises' with Established Writer-In-Residence Jean Kent

Guided by the skill and eloquence of Established Writer-in-Residence Jean Kent, participants were given stimulation, support and technical help with writing poetry. Using contemporary examples and a few poems of their own, they were encouraged to try new things and sharpen their poetic skills, becoming confident in their ability to weave a beautiful and detailed tapestry of words in the way Jean Kent is so brilliantly able to.

POETS@KSP

At the 26th October meeting, Jean kindly agreed to give an informal in-house launch of Poets@KSP2009, a chapbook containing the work of our eight women poets: Mardi May, Paula Jones, Rose van Son, Gail Robinson, Agnes O'Kane and Sally Clarke. We were delighted with her lengthy appraisal of our work. Jean brought the afternoon to a close with a reading of her delightful poem, 'Angels'

WABIAD Winners Announced

Write-a-Book-in-a-Day Awards at The Boulevard Centre

The children's books are in, the judges have made their final decisions and the winners were announced at the Write-a-Book-in-a-Day (WABIAD) Awards at The Boulevard Centre, on Tuesday 27th at 2pm.

Teams across the country, including teams from Christmas Island and central WA, created a WABIAD record of 90 books and raised funds for Children's Hospitals Australia and Princess Margaret Hospital.

The WABIAD challenge was for teams from schools, community groups and writing groups to create a children's book in 12 hours. The teams raised sponsorship of $23,312, and their finished books went to a children's hospital in their state. Pictures and small blurbs from the entries can be found on our website.

The ceremony was packed with excited students, teachers and writers. KSP Treasurer Chris Oakeley opened the ceremony and presented the awards. The rest of the night was spent drinking orange juice, reading all the winning books and having a wonderful time.

Everyone who participated deserves a big round of applause for their efforts! Children's Hospitals Australia thanks everyone for the money raised that will go towards helping kids in need. We hope everyone had fun creating their brilliant masterpieces.

Events in November

Wednesday 7 October – Tuesday 3 November Established Writer-In-Residence Jean Kent

Saturday 7 - Sunday 8 Darlington Arts Festival at Darlington Oval
KSP will be there with a stall, information, books for sale and readings.

Saturday 7 - Saturday 21 Young Writer-In-Residence Jessica Stalley

Jessica is a local writer with one completed novel in her portfolio, Sweetheart - a dramatic novel set in suburban Australia which deals with the fallout of a family's devastating secret. She studied English and Media Studies at Murdoch University with lecturers including Simone Lazaroo and Deborah Robertson. She is currently working on a trilogy of supernatural novels set in New York and Mexico and plans to use her time at the centre to further develop this piece of work. The series begins with Mia Blake, who is walking home from work one bleak winter evening when everything goes black. She wakes up three days later in a seedy Mexican motel, bitten, bloodied and... dead. A newborn vampire, Mia must leave everything she holds dear and use her wits to survive in a tough city. Jessica also publishes a weekly writing blog as well as a personal development blog and is interested in building a long-term writing career.

Saturday 14 1pm – 4 pm Looking at the 'big picture': Structural editing for prose writers' with Amanda Curtin

Repeat workshop by popular demand. A workshop designed to help fiction and non-fiction writers approach their work as a structural editor would. Amanda will discuss common structural problems, as well as techniques to help writers step back from the words and sentences and look at 'big-picture' issues. This is the perfect workshop to do so you have the summer holidays to apply what you learn to your manuscript! Amanda Curtin is a freelance book editor with 25 years' experience (adult and junior fiction, picture books, general non-fiction, scholarly). She is also an award-winning writer of short fiction and essays, and in 2008 published her first novel, The Sinkings. M $25, NM $40, bookings essential.

Back by Popular Demand

Tuesday 17 7pm – 10 pm Literary Dinner with Young Writer-In-Residence Jessica Stalley

Don't miss the opportunity to meet Jessica and hear some of her work.

Saturday 21 1pm – 4pm Workshop 'Creating a Novel Blueprint' with Young Writer-In-Residence Jessica Stalley

This workshop is about taking the seed of an idea you have for a novel and using it to create a detailed writing plan. During the workshop there will be plenty of time for reflective writing, as well as more structured time for creating a usable novel blueprint. Moving through three stages of creation - Inspiration, Planning, and Writing - we will develop a structured novel blueprint that will guide us through the writing process without taking any of the excitement or anticipation away from the writing process. Through the use of writing prompts and freewriting exercises, we will emerge at the end of the workshop with a novel blueprint, tools for keeping track of characters and other details, and an achievable writing schedule with an optional self-imposed first-draft deadline. Members $25, non-members $40, bookings essential.

Saturday 28 7pm – 9pm Book presentation: "The Kimberley Series" by Joel Smoker

Born in 1952 at Derby, the west Kimberley regional centre in WA, Joel Smoker has been taking photographs since he was in primary school. He started with a Box Brownie camera and then graduated to a Kodak camera that could shoot both colour and black and white. He still has photographs in his collection that he took from his travels around the Kimberley as a boy. From 1983 Joel took up a position as an Arts Advisory Teacher with the Education Department, based at the Kimberley District Education Office in Kununurra in the east Kimberley for three years, taking his camera with him everywhere. The result is a collection of images that document the landscape and the times during those years. The Kimberley Series are forty photographs that have been selected from this collection of images that represent the vision of a native son. The photographs were first exhibited in 1987 at Birrukmarri Gallery in Fremantle in conjunction with an art exhibition by artists from the Waringarri Aboriginal Arts Centre in Kununurra. The photographs have since been exhibited in numerous esteemed exhibitions. The Kimberley Series of photographs can be viewed on Joel's web site at www.joelsmoker.com M $4, NM $7 Call to book.
